ROOSEVELT MAY ASK REDUCTION IN COMPENSATION

Addresses Two Messages To Congress; May Be Sent Today

OF "GREAT URGENCY"

Other Believed Relative To Appropriation for Unemployment Relief

By George R. Holmes
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 10.—President Roosevelt this morning addressed two messages to Congress, one of which will probably be sent to the capital during the day.
One will request sweeping powers to reduce the veterans' compensation and the other will ask an appropriation to further President Roosevelt's plans on unemployment relief.
These were the matters referred to by the President in his bank message yesterday as of "great urgency."

WASHINGTON, Mar. 10.—(INS)—Promptly utilizing the dictatorial powers vested in him by the emergency banking legislation rushed through Congress, President Roosevelt has extended the bank holiday indefinitely—but with the expectation that all the sound banks of the country will be opened for normal functioning on Monday.
Some probably will open tomorrow. The delay in opening was dictated by the necessity of separating the "sheep" from the "goats" in the banking situation, that is, determining which banks are sound enough to resume regular operations, and which are in such a precarious state as to require reorganization in the interest of security to depositors.

Under the new legislation, the President has wide powers to compel such reorganization.
An over-worked Treasury was busily engaged today in the business of such classification.

An invitation to banks to make application to reopen was issued this morning by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin. Returning to the Treasury from the White House where he witnessed the signing of the new proclamation by President Roosevelt extending the holiday, and, incidentally, the gold embargo, Woodin said:

"The emergency banking legislation passed by the Congress Thursday is a most constructive step toward the solution of the financial and banking difficulties which have confronted the country."

"The extraordinary rapidity with which this legislation was enacted by the Congress heartens the country."

"This legislation makes possible the opening of banks upon a sound basis backed by an adequate supply of currency. Through the law the banks which will open will be placed in a position to meet all demands. This assurance should restore confidence and create the foundation for a forward movement in business activities."

"It will be the policy of the Treasury to permit as rapidly as possible the opening of sound banks. There are, of course, many thousands of such banks which will probably be restored to the performance of their normal functions."

"The Treasury has already taken steps to secure information through proper authorities as to the condition of the various banks of the country and immediately invites from the banks the applications for reopening."

"While much information has already been assembled, the completion of the information and of the arrangements of the banks for resuming their functions takes some time. It has therefore been decided not to authorize any reopening before Saturday, March 11."

"It is obvious that it will not be possible to act upon all of the applications even by Saturday. Regulations governing reopenings and also other subjects governed by the legislation will immediately be published."

ZANGARA SENTENCED TO DEATH

Miami, Florida, Mar. 10.—Giuseppe Zangara today was sentenced to death on his plea of guilty to first degree murder for the shooting of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago in an attempt to assassinate President Roosevelt. Judge Uly O. Thompson decreed the mad Italian bricklayer must die in the electric chair at the Ralston State Prison but did not state the date. Governor Dave Sholtz will name the date and hour of the execution.

The Chicago mayor, shot down by Zangara in Bayfront Park February 15th, during a welcoming celebration to President Roosevelt, succumbed to his wounds March 6th after an amazing 19-day battle against scores of malignant maladies.

As the Judge read the death sentence in slow major words, Zangara showed no trace of emotion, displaying the same air of nonchalance he has maintained since his arrest. A still smile spread across his swarthy countenance. Zangara remained stolidly silent as sentence was pronounced, but as his guards closed in and he was led from the court room he turned and shouted:

"I no scared."
"I think I right—I kill all Presidents."

"You crook too, you should die, too."

Just before sentence was passed, Judge Thompson asked if Zangara wished to say anything in his behalf. With eyes blazing, he screamed: "I want to kill all Presidents. No like governments!" "Capitalists all crooked. Lotta people make lotta money—all wrong—I want kill all rulers—take money, put it in pile and burn it up. Everything just for money. People no need money—need bread. Thata why I want burn money."

SLAYER KILLS SELF

Condorsport, Mar. 10.—A 16-year-old triple slayer today wrote a tragic "Anis" to a series of father and son quarrels climaxed by a youthful raid in which the boy's father, another son and a farm hand were shot to death and the family home put to the incendiary torch. John McGinnis, the youthful killer, was found dead in an automobile with a gun in his hand. A verdict of suicide was rendered.

Meanwhile, the boy's mother, Mrs. Alfred McGinnis, found shelter with neighbors for herself and four other children, one a babe in arms. She had been deprived of two sons, widowed and made homeless when John shot down his father, brother and a hired man, set fire to the house and killed himself in a stolen automobile in which he had fled the scene.

The dead were: John; the father, Alfred McGinnis, 55; a 12 year old brother, Frank, and a farmhand, Miles McFall, 60.

FAT RECORD IN STATE BROKEN BY CANBY COW

Lois Lera Ornsby, 5-Year-Old, Produces 763.5 Pounds In Ten Months

STABLE-MATE IS SECOND

HULMEVILLE, Mar. 10.—A record of 763.5 pounds fat and 20,440.4 pounds of milk averaging to test 3.7 per cent in the past 10 months has been completed by Lois Lera Ornsby, the five-year-old registered Holstein cow, which is owned by Joseph O. Canby, Greenwood Farm, according to the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

First place on the state list for the class in which it was made is thus secured by this butterfat record. The test for a year of this cow shows she produced 829.3 pounds fat, and 22,195.4 pounds milk, which ranks third on the state list.

Corona Creamerie Pontiac is another cow in the Canby herd to complete a splendid record. This cow made in 10 months Class B 644.6 pounds fat and 18,394.8 pounds of 3.5 per cent milk as a six-year old. Her butterfat record ranks second in the state list, being exceeded only by Lois Lera Ornsby.

Mr. Canby reports that "Lois" was fed 12 to 16 pounds of grain a day and consumed 2300 pounds alfalfa hay, 1563 pounds of mixed hay, 6590 pounds silage and 1778 pounds beef pulp. "Corona" received 12 to 15 pounds grain a day and during her test she ate 1699 pounds alfalfa hay, 1563 pounds mixed hay, 6519 pounds silage and 1806 pounds beef pulp. Both cows were on pasture for 173 days.

Two other cows have finished this year's work with over 20,000 lbs. and 700 lbs. fat, and three others going at better than a 20,000-lb. rate.

Mr. Canby's herd in the C. T. A. year just closed with largest average ever made in Bucks county, 469.8% fat, for 30 cows or over.

AWAIT DEVELOPMENTS OF PINCHOT-KING FEUD

Capitol Hill Views Governor's Accusations As Indictment Of Entire Commission

LULL IN "CROSS-FIRE"

By Joseph A. Loftus (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Mar. 10.—(INS)—With a lull in the crossfire between Gov. Gifford Pinchot and Dr. Clyde L. King, Capitol Hill today viewed the Governor's accusations, in the light of King's reply, as an indictment of the entire Public Service Commission.

Clearly, the statement of each was a challenge to the other, and political circles eagerly awaited an expression from the rest of the Pinchot-appointed commission as the next significant development in the feud.

Governor Pinchot's declaration that the usefulness of Dr. King as commission chairman "is at an end" was based on the latter's testimony before the Senate utilities investigating committee.

King's answer was: "I gave no testimony not previously unanimously endorsed by every member of the commission."

Unless repudiated by the other commissioners, that reply converts the Governor's views into a blanket attack upon all members of the commission, the majority of whom are administration appointees and include P. S. Stahlkeiser, confidential aide of Pinchot for 25 years.

Abruptly terminating the friendship of the two was the Senate probe of the utilities, Governor Pinchot charging that Dr. King "has created the widespread impression that he is against continuing the investigation and for shielding the utilities."

An analysis of Dr. King's statement and its implications led to the belief that an open breach between the Governor and his other commission appointees is looming, if the split does not already exist. The doctor referred to the commission as including three "former" personal friends of the Governor. He refused to amplify the statement.

Speculation was rife as to whom among the Pinchot appointees had fallen into the classification of "former personal friends" of the Governor.

Besides Dr. King and Stahlkeiser, the men named to the public service body by Governor Pinchot are George W. Woodruff, Frederick P. Gruenberg and C. Jay Goodnough.

The understanding was quite general today that Dr. King may legally continue in office until the expiration of his term in 1937 unless the Senate specifically decrees otherwise. In the absence of a formal opinion from the attorney general, this belief was based upon the Supreme Court decision a few years ago in the case of James S. Bann, whom Governor Pinchot in his first administration removed as a public service commissioner. The court returned Bann and decreed that the Senate's consent was necessary for removal.

Pinchot, however, previously has gone to the trouble of formally reappointing commissioners after the Senate adjourned a session without acting upon the appointments, ostensibly on the basis that their terms had automatically expired with the adjournment.

SHERIFF TELLS HOW SALE WAS INTERFERED WITH

Alleges That Commotion and Threats Were Made By the Crowd

500 PEOPLE IN COURT

Sheriff Offered to Confer With Committee at The Sale

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 10.—Bucks county's widely-discussed $1.18 Sheriff's sale was aired in court yesterday before Judge Hiram H. Keller and Judge Calvin S. Boyer when a hearing started for the purpose of taking testimony that will enable the Court to rule on a motion to have the sale set aside.

Nearly 500 persons filled the court room as the testimony got under way at 10.30. Sheriff Gwinner was represented by Isaac J. Vanartsdalen and Oscar O. Bean. Attorney Webster S. Achey, who represented the plaintiff in the sheriff sale, was present at the hearing in behalf of his client. The defendant, John Hanzel, whose property was sold for the low-record amount of $1.18, was represented by David Levinson, of Philadelphia, and Stace B. McIntee, of Doylestown. Levinson is employed in the case by the Bucks County Farmers' Protective Association, who are fighting the effort to have the sale set aside.

From the start, Judge Keller made it plain that the hearing was expressly for the purpose of taking testimony and nothing else.

Sheriff Gwinner testified as the first witness called by Mr. Vanartsdalen, that in January he went to the Hanzel farm in Bedminster township to hold the sale. His deputies and Attorney Achey were there too, he said.

"At the sale, I would say, between 200 and 250 farmers surged or pushed us out of the house," the Sheriff testified. "My auctioneer could not hear the bids, so loud was the noise. I told the farmers that if they had a committee we could talk this thing over and the answer came back, 'We are all committee.'"

"The amount of the sale was $1.18 for stuff that was worth between $800 and $900."

"I heard several threats made at Mr. Achey, attorney for Jacob Laufersweiler, the plaintiff in the Sheriff sale proceeding. I heard a number of the persons at the sale cry out, 'Hang the ————'."

Attorney Levinson strenuously objected unless the Sheriff could tell who made the statements.

"The Court is not interested in who made the statements, but is interested in whether the sale was properly conducted," Judge Keller answered Levinson as he told the witness to continue with his testimony.

Sheriff Gwinner then read from his sale return, showing that Peter Kodas bought a grind stone for two cents, several cows for two and three cents apiece; all the harness for two cents; Paul Gross, another of a committee of three who bought all the goods, purchased a mowing machine for three cents. J. Neizley bought a cow for two cents.

"All the things sold were in good condition," the Sheriff testified.

Attorney Levinson questioned the Sheriff as to whether he knows what a riot consists of.

TOMATO GROWERS MEET AT FALLSINGTON

Nearly 200 Attend Session Held in Fallsington Community House

RECOMMEND ROTATION

FALLSINGTON, Mar. 10.—Approximately 200 tomato growers of Bucks county Wednesday evening attended a meeting held in the Fallsington Community House for the purpose of cleaning new ideas in reference to the production of tomatoes.

During the evening County Agent William F. Greenawald, who arranged the meeting, submitted a number of statistics which showed that during the past year 157 farmers in the county were engaged in the extensive cultivation of can house tomatoes. These 157 farmers devoted a total of 1733 acres to the cultivation of tomatoes and the average acreage per grower was 11%. The average tonnage per acre was 7.28.

The statistics also showed that 63 percent of the tomatoes were graded as number one, that 24 percent were number two and that three percent had been classified as culls.

Farmers engaged the past year in the cultivation of tomatoes received an average of $16.92 per ton. John L. Tomlinson, of Oxford Valley, devoted a 10-acre tract to the cultivation of tomatoes and 77 percent of his crop was listed as number one tomatoes, 22 percent as number two and one percent culls. Another farmer who devoted three acres to the cultivation of tomatoes had 85 percent of them listed as number one, 14 percent as number two and only one percent as culls. His average yield per acre was 7.86 tons.

A third farmer had 40 percent of his tomatoes listed as number one, 58 percent as number two and 2 percent as culls. His average yield per acre was 4.84 tons.

The speaker of the evening was Nicholas Schmitz, extension agronomist of State College, who told the growers that if they expect to maintain the high yields of tomatoes, they will have to make a definite crop rotation plan. This can be a two, three or four-year rotation with one year devoted to the growing of a legume to be plowed under or fed to live stock and returned to the soil in the form of manure in order to build up the fertility of the soil.

The best legumes in such a rotation, said Mr. Schmitz, would be sweet clover, red clover or alfalfa. He recommended the use of soy beans as an emergency crop in case of the failure of either sweet clover or red clover.

Mr. Schmitz recommended the use of commercial fertilizer in addition to the manure. The use of commercial fertilizer alone, said Mr. Schmitz, will not build up the fertility of the soil which needs humus in order to improve its physical condition and increase its water holding capacity.

Suggestion was made by the speaker of the use of a fertilizer high in phosphoric acid, such as a 4-12-4 or a 4-16-4 for tomatoes.

The majority of the Bucks county growers use approximately 800 pounds of commercial fertilizer per acre applied in the row.

Mr. Williams, a representative of the cannery to which most of the farmers shipped their tomatoes, stated that the contracts for this year will be out in the next three or four days. He also announced that there will probably be a forty percent less acreage contracted for this year.

URGES ABSOLUTE REPEAL OF EDMONDS ACT; DORON GREEN TELLS FATHERS SUCH IS "UNJUST AND UN-AMERICAN"

Says Only Solution to Problems of School Districts is The Return to Former "Sane Policy" of Allowing Districts To Work Out Their Own Economic Problems

An interesting and intelligent presentation of the Edmonds Act in its relation to the government of the public schools, was given last night by Doron Green, president of the Bristol School Board. Mr. Green made his talk before members of the Bristol Fathers' Association in the high school auditorium.

The Edmonds Act under which the public schools in Pennsylvania operate is held responsible for much of the increased cost of education and the conduct of the school system.

"In order to understand the Edmonds Act it is first necessary to know something about the classification of school districts," stated Mr. Green in his opening remarks. "Districts having a population of over 500,000 are considered in the first class. Those having a population between 30,000 and 500,000 are called second class districts. Third class districts have a population between 5,000 and 30,000 and fourth class or rural districts are those having a population of less than 5,000."

Then the speaker proceeded to name the schools listed as third class districts in Bucks County. All of the others are in the fourth class.

The text of Mr. Green's talk is given as follows:
Bristol, Morrisville and Bensalem are the only third class districts in Bucks County, all the others being in the fourth class. The Edmonds Act in its application to the school districts in Bucks County, treats each class differently.

The Act prescribes a minimum salary of $100 per month for grade teachers, and $130 for high school teachers in fourth class districts. The determination of salaries above this minimum basis is left with the various school boards. They can raise the salaries as high as they desire, through their own volition, and then enjoy the right to reduce salaries again, as long as the reduction does not reach an amount below the minimum basis established by the State. To assist districts of the fourth class, the State appropriates an amount equal to 50% of the minimum salary.

But the act in its relationship to third class districts like Bristol, Morrisville and Bensalem, is entirely different in its application. It establishes the same minimum salary as that which prevails in fourth class districts, but it also establishes a maximum salary $400 higher than the minimum salary basis, and then compels the third class districts to raise the salaries of all their teachers $100 a year until the maximum basis is reached. With the exception of a few of the high school teachers who are receiving an extra reward for years of service, all the other teachers in the Bristol schools are either receiving the maximum amount, or are working up to that level.

While the fourth class districts have the right to lower salaries as

FIREMEN TO DISCUSS THE INCENDIARY FIRES

Many Conflagrations in Bucks Recently Believed To Be Such

MEET AT RICHBORO

Reports on supposed incendiary fires, which have been numerous during the past three months, will without doubt occupy a lengthy discussion period at the quarterly meeting of Bucks County Firemen's Association in Richboro tomorrow evening.

According to Bucks County Fire Marshal, William L. Stackhouse, Hulmeville, there have been about 15 fires in the county during the past three months, which are believed to have been caused by an incendiary.

Nomination of officers will occur, with election following at the June session which will probably be at Chalfont. James A. Groome, association president, Yardley, will preside at the meeting Saturday evening.

The executive committee will probably offer a suggestion that the association conduct meetings every two months, instead of quarterly, it is believed, and thus gain the consensus of opinion of the members. It is stated by one of the officers that the incendiary fires are of such serious proportions that more frequent meetings are considered advisable.

The Ladies' Auxiliary members will meet with Mrs. Emma Gehman, Perkase, president, directing this meeting.

"MINIMUM" WAGES

Twenty-one years ago Massachusetts passed the first minimum wage law. A year later eight other states—California, Colorado, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin—followed this precedent in social legislation. In 1915 Arkansas and Kansas passed legislation to the same end. During the next eight years Arizona, North Dakota, Texas, South Dakota and the District of Columbia came under similar statutes.

In 1919 Nebraska repealed its law and Texas followed that example before the United States supreme court in 1923 declared the District of Columbia act unconstitutional. Later the Arizona, Arkansas and Kansas laws were likewise invalidated.

Nine states still cling to their minimum wage laws, but one of that number—Colorado—spends little on its enforcement and the constitutionality of all except that of Massachusetts is still in question. The Bay State statute is different from the others in that it attempts to enforce the minimum wage by public opinion instead of by the law.

The minimum wage law proposed by the governor of New York state to end labor exploitation during the depression is similar to all the others in at least one particular. It applies only to women and children, setting up no protection for adult males.

Laws of this type will work to the injury of those they seek to protect unless they are made universal. A state with a minimum wage law would lose industries in which there is sharp price competition to states having no such wage limits.

THE START'S THE THING

Not for a year or two has Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, unburdened himself of one of those good-times-forever promises which got his name into the papers in the early months of the depression, but this doesn't necessarily mean that he has since become a confirmed pessimist.

Having been disappointed a number of times and chided by the columnists for it he is not saying when business will cure its anemia. He is frank to admit that he doesn't know, yet is so confident that a cure will be found as to expect it at any moment.

His hopes are based on the history of other economic failures. The country has always been able to pull itself out of these sloughs of despair, and in the most unexpected ways. Good times have ever come without warning even as hard times do.

The famous maker of steel thinks prosperity will return under the impetus of an acute grain shortage over the rest of the world or some new invention capable of building a great new industry even as the radio and automobile did. These are the things good times are made of.

When one large group or class of producers finds a rich market for its output it immediately becomes a large scale consumer of the goods of other producers and passes its prosperity on to others, thus starting a beneficent circle.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

When Major Sands and Monsieur de Bernis came to break their fast in the hut next morning, Miss Priscilla met de Bernis with a complaint concerning Pierre.

This was the third morning in succession that the half-caste had been absent when breakfast was to be prepared, with the result that she had been alone in preparing it.

"He is nowhere to be seen. Each day he does not appear again until close upon noon. What can he be doing? Where does he go?"

"He is seeking yams, perhaps," de Bernis replied casually.

"If so, he never seems to find any. Both yesterday and the day before I saw him return, and he came empty-handed from the woods."

"Perhaps the yams are becoming scarce, and he is driven farther afield in his search for them."

His apparent indifference to his servant's evasion of duty seemed curious to her, as he might have read in the glance with which she searched his face.

"Could he not leave those quests until after we have broken our fast?"

"Perhaps he likes to find the yams still moist with morning dew."

At this absurdity her stare became more marked. "I wonder why you should jest about it."

"In our situation there are so few things that lend themselves for jesting that I may surely be forgiven if I neglect none of these few. But I will speak to Pierre. I will see what can be arranged."

This, she thought, was an oddly offhand way to treat the matter of slight importance though it might be. And to say no more in conclusion than to promise to see what could be arranged, when a simple word from him could remove the cause of her complaint, seemed almost discourteously casual. She pressed the matter no further; but a sense of annoyance remained with her.

Later in the course of the morning, the Major and the Frenchman went off to their daily secret sword-play beyond the bluff.

Captain Leach was strolling alone at the time on the damp firm sands at the very edge of the receding tide, a vivid figure in his scarlet suit. Impatient to be aloft again, and so safe from surprise, he came from urging the men in the completion of the work; for now that the tarring of the hull was finished, only the greasing remained to be done, and in three days, or four at the most, the Black Swan should be ready for launching again.

From where he paced he saw the two men move away from their sequestered little camp and disappear into the woods. He had already observed these morning absences of theirs, and he halted, wondering vaguely whether they went, when his attention was attracted by the green-clad figure of Priscilla Harradine coming forth from her hut. From the distance he watched that trim, graceful shape with eyes of kindling admiration. He watched her turn to the right, and set out briskly, like one who was guided by a definite purpose. She proceeded for some little way along the summit of the beach, then she, too, vanished into the wood.

From wondering whether she might be going so unfalteringly and definitely, he reached almost at once the desire to ascertain. Resentment of the barrier raised against his attentions to the lady had never ceased to smoulder in him; and it was accompanied by a growing impatience for the time when, the business of the Spanish plate fleet being concluded, this barrier would definitely be removed. It had not often happened to Tom Leach to be under the necessity of restraining his desire, and he remained unschooled as a savage in the art of it. Also, as is the way of unruly, undisciplined men, he must ever be preferring that which lay under his hand at the moment to the greater things that might be achieved by planning and waiting. It is an indication of his rudimentary intelligence.

Wriggling like a snake, he thrust himself forward over the bluff, above which, had she looked up, she would have beheld no more than his head.

It is doubtful, therefore, whether in obeying his unreasoning instinct to follow her, he was prompted only by curiosity on the score of her movements.

In long, swift strides he crossed the beach diagonally, straight to the palm tree with the arbutus roses clustering about its stem at which he had marked the spot at which she had vanished into the wood. Once, himself under the shelter of the trees, he had little difficulty in picking up her trail. It was plainly marked in the undergrowth, thinner on the edges of this jungle than in the depths of it.

Cautiously, unhurried, but purposefully now as a hound upon a spoor he followed. The trail led up wards over rising ground. At the summit of this, the hard dry earth between the sparser palms was almost bare, and the trail lost its distinctness; he questioned there for some moments, to be led eventually towards the open by signs which might be those of someone's recent passage that way. But having reached the edge of the bluff, he was entirely at fault. She was nowhere to be seen. Below him, like a gigantic emerald set in a vast cup of rock, he beheld a pool so clear that through its smooth, unruffled surface he could see the fish moving in the depths of it. Saving the unsuspected little platform under the black canopy of rock immediately beneath him, he could survey not merely the beach of this tiny cove, but long stretches of sand beyond the barriers of rock on either side of it, and nowhere in sight was Miss Priscilla.

He concluded that she must have

Unusual Offer Is Made by Vicks on New Mouth-Wash

The makers of Vicks VapoRub have put out a new antiseptic mouthwash and gargle. It will do everything that any mouth antiseptic can and should do... and at half the usual cost.

The proof is actual use in your own home. To furnish this proof, 5 million bottles in a special trial size were supplied to druggists, below cost—a 25c value for only 10c.

But the demand has been enormous. If your druggist is already out of the trial size, the regular 10-ounce size of Vicks Antiseptic is an even bigger bargain—a 75c value for only 35c. And, after using it a week, if you are not delighted with its quality, and amazing economy, you can return the unused portion and get your money back—(Adv.)

BEVERLY ROAD FIVE VICTORS OVER BRISTOL

In the first game of the double-bill played on the Italian Mutual Aid floor last night, the Beverly Road five, runner-up in the Burlington City League, defeated Bristol A. A. by the score of 35-26.

"Henny" Morgan was the only local player to show his true form. The rest of the team were off in their shooting and missed many shots. Morgan hit the cords for two twin-poiners and eight fouls. The stellar Bristol forward dropped in every one of his foul tries. "Chuckie" Connors scored the largest number of field goals for the resident team with three to his credit.

Fast passing in the first half of the game by the Beverly team caught the locals flat-footed and before they realized what was taking place the Jersey-Jets had amassed quite a lead. The Jersey team's lead, however, was never seriously threatened and they romped home with an easy win.

Swhara did some fancy shooting for the winners to total eleven points.

BRISTOL ALL-STARS ARE DEFEATED BY VISITORS

The Endeavor Cardinals, champions of the Burlington City League, were extended to trim the Bristol All-Stars last night on the Italian Mutual Aid floor. The final tabulations were: Cardinals, 43; Bristol, 35.

A last quarter spurt by the Jersey team clinched the game for them as the locals were rallying fast and threatened the early lead set up by the Burlington champions. Three field goals in the course of but two minutes brought the Bristol total to within six points of the Jersey team's total and only a miss of a few seconds stopped the Bristolians from at least deadlocking the score during the rally.

The break of missing those under the basket shots threw the All-Stars off their form as Burlington again forged ahead to finish four field goals ahead of the pick of the Bristol Basketball League.

GOOD WRESTLING FARE BOOKED FOR ARENA

TRENTON, N. J., Mar. 10.—The wrestling fare offered by Promoter Dick Curley at the Arena this evening will abound with new faces. However, the old have been shuffled with the new, and most of the fans' heroes will be on hand.

The feature event will be the rematch between Paul Boesch, handsome New Yorker, and Herbie Freeman, a fish. Their duel last Friday was one of the most spectacular ever witnessed here. During most of the encounter the fans were on the chairs, cheering Boesch and booing Freeman. At the end of 30 minutes the contest was awarded to Boesch.

Not near as bulky as his foe, Paul is forced to give away weight in every match but his speed and agility always overcome that handicap.

Freeman is a pugnacious grappler, relying on his bruising rushes and potent flying tackle to down his opposition. He completely discards the niceties of the game and win or lose, always makes the evening a memorable one for both his adversary and the fans.

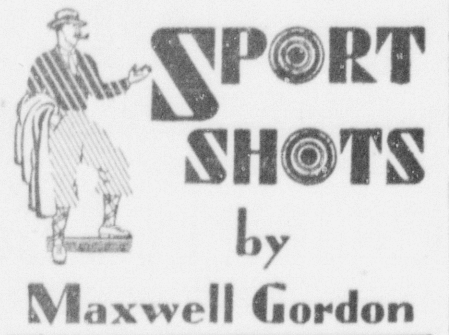

Sam Codovano, newest star in the wrestling firmament, will make his bow to Trenton mat audiences in the companion finish piece against Henry Piers, popular Hollander. Codovano is a former star at Georgetown and is now assistant to Lou Little on the Columbia grid.

The feature time limit bout brings back the "Red Devil," scarlet-clad Canadian and Mike Mazurki, ex-Manhattan College ace.

Mayes McLain, Oklahoma giant, and another new-comer to local grappling circles, will trade grips with Irving Halpern, New York.

Jack Riley, Northwestern grid star, who impressed the mat addicts last week when he downed Cegutti Milstead in 3½ minutes, will swing into action again against Doug Wykoff, another exponent of the flying tackle.

The first bout will start at 8:30 and popular prices will prevail.

WE WERE fortunate in getting hold of a most interesting record book from the library of the high school, which was compiled by P. Piazza, a student of this year's senior class. In this book we found the authentic records of the sports activities participated in by the students of the above institution from 1923 to 1933.

Up to quote from this record: "Until the year 1923 Bristol High School lay dormant, so far as sports were concerned, the only trophy that she had to point to was a Class C cup, which was won in the Bucks County Interscholastic meet held at George School, for placing third."

"In 1923 with the installation of a coach the athletic activities began to speed up and four cups were placed in the trophy room by virtue of a few track stars developed.

"A quartet of boys and three girls were the outstanding athletes. John De Long, Ned Moyer, P. Lombardo and D. Blamanti, were exceedingly fast on the cinder path, while the girls had Alice Randolph, a broad jumper; Selma Allen and Grace Rittler, two real speedsters of the cinder track.

"It remained for this small group of athletes to form the nucleus for the great track teams, football squads, baseball and basketball teams that developed in later years.

"Grace Rittler, as many know, developed into one of the greatest female sprinters ever to don a track suit. Alice Randolph also was outstanding, having broken the standing broad jump record. When asked what she thought was the greatest step taken for the advancement of athletics for girls, Miss Rittler once replied: 'Giving us trunks in place of baggy bloomers to run in.'

"Grace established a record for the 60 yard dash that was only 2 seconds less than the world's record of 6.2" . . . We will write more about the athletic activities at the high school again. . .

FIRE AT QUAKERTOWN

Quakertown, Mar. 10.—Fanned by a high wind, fire today leveled a two and a half story frame farm home of Joseph E. Biddison, of Spinnerstown, six miles west of here. A defective chimney was responsible for the blaze. Biddison and his wife purchased the farm and dwelling three months ago. They formerly resided at Malvern, near Philadelphia.

Philadelphia Banks Meet Payroll Demands

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 10.—(INS)—With normal resumption of banking postponed temporarily by proclamation of President Roosevelt, Philadelphia banks today met payroll demands with crisp, new scrip certificates. Emergency demands for "relief of distress" and payment for food and perishables were paid out with scrip and cash under a previous ruling of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin.

About one-fifth of the $51,250,000 worth of certificates ordered, all negotiable in this district at par value, was received and distributed to member banks of the Clearing House Association before the opening hour.

At the same time banks were replacing in their vaults hundreds of thousands of dollars released by hoarders. George W. Norris, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, here, announced that more than $1,000,000 in gold had been returned to financial institutions since Monday.

Urges Absolute Repeal Of The Edmonds Act

to our State Legislature to get us out of it.

The teachers' lobby is working hard to maintain the Edmonds Act, and unless the taxpayers wake up and let the legislators hear from them, I am afraid that sometime after the legislature has adjourned they will awaken with a start to find that this unjust and un-American Edmonds Act, has been retained and a great burden of taxation has been shifted from the State to the already overburdened shoulders of the taxpayers.

Sheriff Tells How Sale Was Interfered With

the crowd that if they did not keep quiet he would arrest them.

The Sheriff testified that Mr. Achey himself bought something at the sale, one a mowing machine for 25 cents, and a number of other articles, but said that Achey withdrew his bids. Levinson questioned the Sheriff at length as to Achey's bidding and purchasing at the sale.

"And isn't it true that Achey's name does not appear on your sale sheet at all?" Levinson asked.

"Yes, that's because Achey withdrew his bids," the Sheriff answered.

The Sheriff, in answer to a question as to other sales he has conducted, stated to Levinson that he had never conducted a sale before where the Sheriff and auctioneer were pushed out of a building.
